

Thousands of living stories One connected system

What do more than 71,000 libraries have in common?
They are all part of OCLC. A worldwide, non-profit organisation governed and guided by participating libraries in more than 100 countries.

Every OCLC library is unique. But through global cooperation on research, cost saving, and industry initiatives - a broader picture emerges. Libraries are united in new ways, providing greater value to the communities they serve.

Libraries everywhere are becoming more connected through OCLC.

And that's a beautiful picture.
